GEN. GRANT DROPS DEAD

At His Apartments in Hotel
Buckingham, New York,
Yesterday Morning.

HEART FAILURE THE CAUSE.

End Came With a Suddenness
That Shocked the Entire Country.

New York, April 12.—Major-General Frederick Dent Grant died suddenly after midnight, sending a shock through the city such as that which startled the country upon the death of his father 27 years ago.

The following statement was made at 1 o'clock by General Grant's attending physicians, Drs. Abbey and Bench:

"General Grant had been suffering from diabetes and the attendant digestive disturbances, which seemed, however, to be perfectly under control."

This sudden fatal termination came as a great surprise. His wife and nurse were with him at the time, and the physicians, who were called at once, found the heart had stopped instantly.

Maj. Gen. Fredrick Dent Grant, the eldest son of Ulysses S. Grant, the eighteenth President of the United States, was born at St. Louis, Mo., May 30, 1850. He was with his father during a part of the Civil War, witnessed the capture of Forts Henry and Donelson and went with his father's command through the Virginia campaign. He witnessed also the fights at Corinth, Vicksburg, Nashville and Petersburg.

After the war, young Grant entered West Point and was graduated in 1871. For a year he served as a civil engineer for the Union Pacific railway, and in 1872 accompanied Gen. Sherman on a trip to Europe. Grant served as an aide-de-camp of Gen. Sheridan and took part in the campaigns against the Indians.

ROOSEVELT CARRIES ILLINOIS PRIMARY

Former President Has Big Lead Over Taft and Clark Leads Over Wilson.

Chicago, April 10.—Incomplete returns from Illinois primary election precincts indicate that Theodore Roosevelt led President Taft about two and a half to one in the preferential presidential primary and that Champ Clark's vote in the same primary was approximated twice that for Gov. Wilson, of New Jersey.

Colonel Chauncey Dewey, head of the state Roosevelt organization, gave out a statement, declaring the former president had carried Illinois by 150,000, and that while the average proportion of his vote to that of President Taft was 2 1/2 to 1, in places it had been as high as 5 to 1.

Senator La Follette polled a small vote.

State candidates known to be friendly to Senator Lorimer are indicated by early returns to have lost in several contests. Chief of these was Len Small, who for governor appears to have been defeated by Governor Deneen.

PEMBROKE R. R. 3.

Brides To Quit.

The Continental and Commercial Bank, one of the largest financial institutions in Chicago, has passed a rule regarding the resignation of all women employees when they marry. According to Vice-President W. G. Schroeder, the bank, which employs 100 women clerks, bars married women for these reasons:

Business and matrimony do not go together.

A bank is a business institution, not a school for matrimony.

Love affairs in banks should be thoroughly and timely discouraged.

Married women should be at home not at a typewriter or adding machine, and should not arrogate the rights of single women who have to earn their own living.

Refugees Married.

Hickman, Ky., April 10.—Despite their being refugees from the floods and homeless, Miss Paralee Kelly and Allen Newton, two young people who are being cared for here from Dorena, Mo., vicinity across the river from Hickman, were married here yesterday. This is the second marriage that has occurred among the refugees here.

Cupid's Lucky Move

By

OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Senator Elias Lansing wanted to get married again. So did Mrs. Marsh. That is, Senator Lansing had not dreamed of marrying until he saw Mrs. Marsh, and Mrs. Marsh had no desire to assume matrimonial vows for the second time until she met the senator.

They had met at a reception at the Italian legation one afternoon, and as soon as the senator had made his best bow to the bright little woman in the stunning gown and hat of king's blue Cupid began to get in his work. The blue velvet hat on the soft golden hair made her look very girlish, and the senator, looking from her to the slender girl beside her, wondered if he had heard aright when presented to her daughter.

Mrs. Marsh and Isabel met the senator often at teas, dinners, theaters and balls. Washington began to look wise and nod his head when the senator took to dropping into Mrs. Marsh's box after the first act, or walking home from church with the widow and her daughter. And Mrs. Marsh was always wearing violets these days—huge bunches—with the usual orchid.

The man was in love with the widow. But the trouble was this: He was poor—poor, as senators go. Having no one to support but himself, he was able to afford the show the world demands of a senator. He had an apartment that was all that an apartment should be. And his clothes, his servants and his car came up to the public demand. Until now he had resisted marriageable daughters, debutantes and widows.

On the other hand, Mrs. Marsh, after ten years' absence, had come back to Washington, taken a small house with a huge rent, and she and her daughter wore gowns which were the envy of every woman in the capital. It was true the garden-er did run the electric car for them and the same maid was always in evidence, but what of that! Such gowns and such well-kept house seemed to signify an ample supply of money to the senator's simple mind.

"I won't marry any woman who can't live on my income," he said over and over again to himself. "Even if she has her own money I've got to feel I can keep her. No. It's no use; so I guess it's home to Wexford county for Elias when the session's over. Anyhow, it'll be good to get back to the old house and Jeremy will be glad to see me—good old dog—and Allen and his wife and the horses. Oh, the simple life for me; and yet things somehow won't seem just as they did before. Allen and Sarah do make me comfortable, that's sure; and Jeremy dog is a good old scout enough, mornings hunting and nights by the fire, but if there was just somebody to—"

That somebody wasn't so vague as it sounds. There was a clearly defined vision always before his eyes. But, strangely enough, instead of wearing blue velvet she was always clad in blue gingham—sometimes with a dainty white apron and smiling at him across the breakfast table. Somehow he liked her in the gingham. He grew absent-minded and morose.

One night to get away from everything—at a debutante's ball—he hid behind some palms in the conservatory. The dance music, soft and dreamy so far away, and the faint splash of a fountain were soothing. He had his dreams to himself. Mrs. Marsh and Isabel were both at the dance, but both were in demand. He had danced two with the former, and there was a long interval until the next with her. He had none between. But if he couldn't have his lady love, or at least be with her, he was becoming contented with this vision of his—the lady in blue gingham.

The music and fountain became fainter and slowly stopped. The senator's head nodded and he slipped just over the edge of day-dreamland into real dreamland with the same sweet golden lady leading him on. He did not know the difference until he heard her voice behind him on the other side of the palms.

"Mercy, Isabel! I should have died if I hadn't had this chance to rest. Just think, Annie and I finished all that huge ironing and here I am dancing. Tell me, dearie, you don't think money is an old goose, do you, for really liking a good time so well?"

Senator Lansing gripped the arm of his bench and started to rise. No—he couldn't! One step and they would see him, and he would not dare let them know he had heard. The situation was frightful for him, but there was no help for it. He must stay. He did not hear Isabel's low answer—it might have been a mere kiss. Then Mrs. Marsh went on.

"Well, anyway, dearie, it's about all ended isn't it? Are you quite sure we will have enough money left to pay O'Hara and Annie and get back decently to Claytonia after we sell the car?" Again Isabel's low tones answered inaudibly, but Mrs. Marsh's distinct voice could not be ignored. "Anyway, dearest, I'm glad we came and so, so sorry to go, but the money is all gone and we've got to. I am glad Charley knows about our poverty. Oh, Isabel, you ought to be the happiest girl in the world. I am so glad for you and to have you so happy is worth coming for."

Then Isabel answered more plainly and with a happy laugh. "And I do not believe anyone knows we make nearly all our own gowns and every hat we wear. No one would blame us, dear, for wanting to have one last good time, even if it did take our last cent to do it. I really think people like us. They seem to."

But what was that! Mrs. Marsh sobbing, by the gods! The senator gasped. Then Isabel's voice: "There, monsey, don't, oh please, please don't. Yes, I guessed it. I know all about it, and he is an old dear, too. But why he doesn't say something I can't understand. There, there, dear, that is better. That's it. Put your head down here. It is too bad we can't just live here, on your account, monsey dear. But maybe we can come again sometime, and maybe he will be here then, too."

A few more broken words: "Much hurry—this dance with so and so—he'll be hunting the town for me—there monsey—no your nose isn't red—the idea!" Their voices moved away.

Senator Lansing was trembling with joy. Surely there was no mistake. They could only have meant one person—himself. And their secret—now his—should die with him.

It seemed hours before time for his dance. Mrs. Marsh, radiant in pale blue satin and not in the least looking tired, was willing to sit out the dance in the conservatory.

The senator wasted no time. "I want to ask you a funny question, Mrs. Marsh, if you don't mind. Do you ever wear blue gingham dresses?"

"Why, yes, you funny man. I live in them at home, and what is more, there is nothing I like better."

"I know it, Laura. Laura, dear, I love you. Will you marry me tomorrow? You must."

And Laura said simply, "Yes, Elias, dear, I will." And although she did not say, "This is so sudden," she thought so.

Senator Lansing gripped the arm of his bench and started to rise. No—he couldn't! One step and they would see him, and he would not dare let them know he had heard. The situation was frightful for him, but there was no help for it. He must stay. He did not hear Isabel's low answer—it might have been a mere kiss. Then Mrs. Marsh went on.

"Well, anyway, dearie, it's about all ended isn't it? Are you quite sure we will have enough money left to pay O'Hara and Annie and get back decently to Claytonia after we sell the car?" ## From The Hogwallow Kentuckian

After having read the almanac through two or three times it is still hard for Columbus Allsup to understand what patent medicine has to do with the condition of the weather.

Just as soon as Yam Sims has received a written guarantee that spring has come he is going to put on his striped pants and standing collar, and depart for Tickville, and when the train comes in he is going to walk into the coach and take a drink out of the ice water tank.

Atlas Pack has violated the confidence of several of his warmest friends and after this it will be a hard matter for him to get a drink of licker that is any account. He obtained a jug of Bat Smith's Moonlight Reel the other day under the pretense that he was going to use it in celebrating his annual birthday. But instead of that he took it home put some asofedita in it, and is using it for pneumonia medicine.

Among those who are pleased with the action of Congress in cutting the word "applause" out of the speeches appearing in the Congressional Record, is our postmaster, as he won't have to stop and laugh so much now while reading it.

In his discourse at the Wild Onion school house on "Prehistoric Wild Animals of Kentucky" Saturday night Prof. Sap Spradlen had occasion to speak in glowing terms of Tobe Moseley's ancestors.

Washington Hocks brought to our office this week a curiosity in the shape of a three-egged stove.

Raz Barlow has gone to Tickville to get ideas as to how the bartender roaches his hair.

Fletcher Henstep says before anyone can appreciate the long and rough trip made recently by the man that found the South Pole, we should climb to the top of some tall tree and take a look down that way.

A notice in the Tickville Tidings of last week asking everybody to "Watch This Space and Save Money," has caused several of our citizens to lay aside their other work this week.

The public drinking cistern at the postoffice sprung a leak this week, and Fit Smith has been appointed a committee of one to look into it.

Luke Mathewsala has been figuring this week on buying himself a suit of clothes, but has come to the decision that he had better wait and see how the presidential election is going.

Prof. Sap Spradlen got him a memorandum book about a month ago, and carries it around with him for the purpose of setting down all of his thoughts that amount to anything. So far he has not had occasion to make any notations.

Day before yesterday the Postmaster laid his pike down somewhere at the postoffice, and so far has been unable to find it. He says that is one trouble about occupying a government position.

Raz Barlow says the next hardest thing to do besides finding out who is your friend is to try to locate a frog in a grass patch.

Jefferson Potlocks says he finds that people had the headache as far back as the Bible days.

Frisby Hancock's rheumatism has taken a turn for the worst, and he has decided he had better look out after his religion. Sunday he went over and bragged on the Dog Hill preacher's sermon.

The Deputy Constable was called to the home of the Old Miser on Musket Ridge yesterday to assist him in finding a dime that had been misplaced around the house. The Deputy did not strain his eyes looking, there being no reward.

Fletcher Henstep came in this morning with the report that spring had arrived at Bounding Billows, and that everybody was beginning to dig fishing worms. Spring will probably reach Hogwallow about day after tomorrow, as we are only about eight miles west of that place.

At the Tickville opera house Tuesday night there was a moving picture exhibition. This is the second one that has exhibited there, and it is quite a curiosity in its way. It is similar to the magic lantern show, only the people in the pictures run, instead of standing still. The picture the other night wound up with a chase, all the people in the picture getting after a fellow and running him for several minutes. The opera house manager told the picture show man that he must be careful about these chase pictures as most of the farms around Tickville are "posted."

MUCH INTEREST

Is Shown in the Manufacture of Prowse Aeroplanes.

With the coming of better weather, much interest is being shown in Hopkinsville's new industry, that of the manufacturing of aeroplanes, and daily there are several callers at Prowse's factory, located in the new Cooper building on 11 h street, where a new "military tractor type biplane" is being completed, as well as the manufacture of extra parts for the two machines now on hand. The accompanying cut shows the military of passenger type machine, which measures 53 feet this; machine will be placed a commission upon the arrival of the engine which has been delayed.

Daily flights of short duration, consisting mostly of practice work in landing, the most difficult part of the schooling in the handling of machines, are had almost daily. This morning as well as yesterday, Mr. Lockwood made several short flights, approximately a mile long. These practice flights are for the purpose of getting accustomed to the new controls that have been worked out and placed on the new machines, and being so different from the ones formerly used tend to confuse the operator.

In the next few days, the public will be invited to witness public flights, as it is Mr. Prowse's intention to give several days exhibition before going elsewhere.

A Cash Offer.

The Kentuckian has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the very low subscription price of $2.25. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South, and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer: $2.25 cash for both papers.

Ham sacks for sale at this office.

Expect Solid Delegation.

Speaker Clark's supporters issued a statement expressing satisfaction over the attitude of Gov. McCreary as expressed at the harmony banquet in Louisville and said a solid Kentucky delegation for Clark is now assured at the Baltimore convention.

LeBus In Bad Shape.

Lexington, Ky., April 10.—President LeBus of the Burley society has suffered a physical collapse as the result of overwork.

THE NEWEST VERSION.

BY JOHN F. BIRLE.

"In every town some folks keep some ole houn' aroun' And every time strangers come to town These keepers of houns go to kickin' the ole town aroun' And it's worse to kick your town than to kick your houn' To build up trade in Hoptown men must be too profoun' To kick the town aroun' like some folks kick a houn' And no stranger ever wants to locate in a town Which is kicked aroun' like a houn' until it is down. Hoptown is the best town any where aroun' Every man is a Prince worthy to wear a crown, Every woman a Queen, who won't keep no houn' aroun' There is no room in Hoptown for any ole yellow houn' If you've nothing to do but keep a houn' and kick it aroun' Just move on, we dont want you anywhere on our groun' We aint got no place and we aint got no time in Hoptown For the man who don't do nothin' but yelp like a houn' It's a mean man who kicks even a houn' aroun' But it's the Devil's partner on'y who kicks his town aroun' Of course its your privilege to kick aroun' your own houn' But it hurts like the devil when you kick our town aroun' Now a houn' is a houn' and a town is a town And neither can grow much when they are kicked aroun' If you kick your town aroun' just like it is a houn' You wont build up yourself, your trade or your town Can't we all get together like men for the good o' Hoptown And stop a-kickin' aroun' each other's houn' A "hounded" town always gets a stranger's frown Let's all quit keepin' hounds and kickin' our town."

She Stayed In Bed

Ingram, Tex.—'Ever since I became a woman,' writes Mrs. E. M. Evans, of this place, "I suffered from womanly troubles. Last fall I got so bad, I had to stay in bed for nearly a week every month. Since I have taken Cardul, I feel better than I have for years." You can rely on Cardul. It acts on the womanly organs and helps the system to regain its normal state of health, in a natural way. Prepared especially for women, it prevents womanly pains, by acting on the cause, and builds up womanly strength in a natural way. Purely vegetable. Mild, but certain in action. Try it.

RURAL CARRIER EXAMINATION,

At Hopkinsville, Ky., For Christian County, Saturday, May 4, 1912.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination on the date and at the places named above, as a result of which it is expected to make certification to fill a vacancy in the position of rural carrier at Hopkinsville and OTHER VACANCIES AS THEY MAY OCCUR ON RURAL ROUTES AT POST OFFICES IN THE ABOVE-NAMED COUNTY, unless it shall be decided in the interests of the service to fill the vacancy by re-statement, transfer, or promotion. The usual entrance salary for rural carriers is from $600. to $1,000 per annum.

Age limit, 18 to 55, on the date of the examination. The maximum age limit is waived in cases of persons honorably discharged from the United States military or naval service.

An applicant must have his actual domicile in the territory supplied by a post office in the county for which the examination is announced.

The examination is open to all male citizens of the United States who can comply with the requirements. Application Form 1341, and full information concerning the requirements of the examination, can be secured from the secretary of the local examining board or the postmaster at any of the places named above.

or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Applications should be properly executed and filed with the Commission at Washington. As examination papers are shipped direct from the Commission to the places of examination, it is necessary that applications be received in ample time to arrange for the examination desired at the place indicated by the applicant. The Commission will therefore arrange to examine any applicant whose application is received in time to permit the shipment of the necessary papers.

An eligible register for the position of rural letter carrier for each county will be maintained. A person must be examined in the county in which the post office that supplies his home is situated. As a result of such examination he may become eligible to appointment as rural carrier at any post office in such COUNTY. A rural letter carrier after one year's satisfactory service may be transferred to the position of clerk or carrier in a first or second class post office, to the position of railway mail clerk, or to other position in the classified service, subject to such examination as may be required by the civil service rules.

JOHN C. BLACK, President.

Eligibles on registers established prior to March 1, 1912, can be considered for appointment only at the office for which they were examined. Such eligibles may be examined within one year from the date of their former examinations upon filing applications showing that they meet the requirements of the new examination, their old eligibility for their home offices not being canceled.

The Hotel Booklet.

I like to read in little books of grassy lawns and shady nooks and sandy dunes and purling brooks, but then I take a peek a little further on and see that all this joy is far from free, and that's the painful part to me—that thirty plunks per week.—Washington Herald.

WHEN THEY WENT BACK HOME

Humorist Records Some Surprises That Attended the Occasion of Popular Celebration.

During a recent Old Home Week in an up-state village the following "never-will-amount-to-anythings" were in attendance:

John Wilson Clarke, who was always too lazy to do the chores, came up from New York in his big seven passenger car. On account of pressing work he could stay but a few hours.

Ex-Gov. Silby Kirkwood, who was naturally thick-headed and half-baked in his youth, stopped over in his private car to see his old home.

Dr. Willus G. Dyer, one of the best-known surgeons in the country, called the town fool when a boy, dropped in and left enough money for a town library.

Miss Caroline Jensen Atwood, too stupid to learn in the old red school-house, now a popular authoress and playwright visited her relatives.

Charlie Druke, the spendthrift, shut up his Wall street office long enough to attend.

One of the most noticeable features of the whole celebration was the absence of the men and women who gave much promise of originality and worth during their youth.

Lack of memory in their old age accounts for the fact that not one of the old fogies present ever said anything but good of anybody, including the successful boys present.—Don. Cameron Shafer in Judge.

DICKENS FITTED FOR STAGE

Kate Field, Excellent Judge of Character, Confident He Might Have Been Great Actor.

No one ever paid a much higher tribute to Dickens than did Kate Field. She had the soul of a poet, a discriminating taste in art and literature and wide knowledge of the world. In mentality she was fully as strong as either of her brilliant brothers, David, Dudley, Stephen J. or Cy. She was, and she certainly was as good if not a better judge of character.

She once wrote an appreciation of Dickens in which she declared the world lost its greatest actor when Boz became a writer. She gave a description of one of Dickens readings that was masterly in its vividness of detail. Such versatility as she credited Dickens with displaying as he assumed the character of first one and then another of his creations, the pathos, the humor, the tragedy he put into a tone; the marvelous way in which he stirred the emotions of old and young in his audience, would appear to be a bit extravagant were it not that now and then in later years some old man, looked upon as stern and unemotional, told with faltering voice how he stood in line all one night to buy a ticket to one of Boz' readings, and then went on to talk just about as Miss Field wrote, only before he got as far along in his story the tears were running down his wrinkled cheeks—his old heart strings still attune to the magic of The Master.

Difference in Icebergs.

No two icebergs appear to be exactly alike in size and shape. Some look, for all the world, like Arabs' tents as they glide along, and others like cliffs, castles, cathedrals, yachts, and occasionally they resemble some well known animal. Some of the pinnacles of a large berg rise nearly 1,000 feet above the water, while the base may occupy an area of ten or twelve acres. Seen through a powerful glass, one may detect waterfalls upon these islands of ice, and all kinds of arctic birds, and perhaps a few seals.

Then the colors are almost beyond description. The stately pinnacles glisten in the sun like powdered glass. At times the berg is pure white, at others it looks greenish.—From Harold J. Shepstone's "Icebergs" in St. Nicholas.

"Liked to Be Guiled."

Sir William Gull, the well-known London physician, was once the victim of an amusing piece of repartee on the part of a fellow practitioner. The occasion was a dinner party at which several distinguished medical men were present. The conversation happened to turn upon the subject of quackery, and Sir William Gull expressed his conviction that a certain amount of it was essential to success in practice, adding: "It is an example of the old saying, 'Populus vult decipi' (people like to be deceived)." "Quite so," said the host; "now, can any one present give an English equivalent to that?" "Nothing easier," dryly remarked a well-known physician of one of the Manchester hospitals. "The public liked to be 'guiled.'"

Prosaic "Ghost."

Thinking they had seen a "ghost," a number of Dundee (Scotland) townfolk, while walking through the cemetery recently, took to their heels and summoned the nearest gatekeeper. The "vision" which had aroused their alarm—that of a figure in scanty attire standing behind a gravestone, had vanished when they returned with reinforcements, and all there was to be seen was a large piece of red flannel. It afterwards transpired that the owner being greatly irritated by the flannel, which was next the skin, had gone to the cemetery with the idea of getting rid of it, which he could not do without shedding his garments.

Supreme No. 4864 A. S. H. B. A.

Will make the season 1912 at my place, Howell, Ky., at $20 to insure a mare with foal. Money due when fact is ascertained or mare is traded, transferred or bred to another horse.

PEDIGREE:

Supreme 4864 was sired by Duluth King 3175, he by King Duluth 20, he by Duluth 79, he by Cabell's Lexington F. S. His dam was Dickie Jane 8468, by Brown Squirrel 1114, he by Black Squirrel 58, he by Black Eagle 74, he by King William 67, he by Washington Denmark 64, he by Gaines' Denmark 61, by Denmark F. S. His second dam was a daughter of Black Chief 1499, by Blood Chief 83.

Description:

Supreme 4864 is a mahogany bay stallion 15 1/2 hands high with stripe in face and 4 white feet. Six years old and sound. He is colored and marked very much like Lexington and Denmark families from which he descended. He is a combined horse that has few equals. In addition to having 5 distinct gaits he has a positive trot, with speed and a brilliancy of style and action that is seldom seen. He is very smart, is a natural show horse and sure to produce a type of saddle and harness horses the market demands.

DANGERS OF FAT
HOW FAT AFFECTS THE HEART

Fatty Degeneration of the Heart may well be a bug-bear to all fat people. An excess of fat around the heart not only impedes its movements, but gradually changes the substance of the organ. The pulse becomes weaker; excitement or extra exertion causes throbbing in throat and temples; the breath is short and gassy. When these symptoms come to the man or woman who is too fat, steps should be taken to remove the excess fat, not only from the suffocated heart, but from other parts of the body where it makes its unwelcome appearance. Many so-called fat reducers are dangerous to the fatty heart, placing upon it an added burden by stimulating its action. There is but one sure, harmless fat reducer known, the now famous Marmola Prescription of a Detroit physician, and its more convenient form, Marmola Prescription Tablets. By means of these harmless little tablets, thousands of overfat people have surely and safely reduced their weight at the rate of 10 to 16 oz. a day without exercise or dieting.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists, or the Marmola Company, 918 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., at 75c for a large case.

PROCLAMATION

At the request of the Civic Improvement League, which has volunteered to look after the work of cleaning up the city again this year on three days set apart for that purpose, I hereby designate and appoint APRIL 18, 19 and 20 as clean-up days and call upon all the people of the city to co-operate with the Civic Improvement League and the Health Department in removing all unsightly and unsanitary matter from premises under their control. On those days free wagons will be furnished to all who have been unable to put their places in a sanitary condition and sweepings, litter, tin cans and other debris that does not contain putrid matter or filth required to be removed by scavengers, will be hauled away free of charge, if piled in the streets where it can be reached by the wagons. The details of this work will be taken in hand by committees from the Civic Improvement League and officers will supervise the hauling. This does not mean that ashes that have been accumulating all winter will be hauled free. This is a matter of expense that the people must bear themselves. It is not necessary to wait until the days set apart, but the more yards cleaned up before that time the better. There will be lighter work for the committees and officers who will inspect the city.

The people responded willingly last year and the cleaning up was a great success. I call upon everyone to help do the same good work this year. I believe you will do it.

CHAS. M. MEACHAM, Mayor.

BOARD RAISES ASSESSMENTS

On Railroads and Utility Corporations Over $137,000,000.

WILL WIPE OUT STATE DEBT

Increase of $700,000 in Receipts of Treasury If Raises Stand.

Frankfort, Ky., April 12.—Kentucky's indebtedness will be wiped out in the next three years and the burden of taxation lifted from the people as a result of the action of the State Board of Valuations and Assessment, composed of Henry Bosworth, Auditor, chairman; Dr. C. F. Creel, Secretary of State, and Thomas Rhea, State Treasurer, today in increasing more than $137,000,000 the assessment on franchises of the railroads and other corporations of the State. The State will receive in taxes nearly $700,000 more than was received last year from this one source, and when the board completes the assessment of all public utility corporations it is believed that these corporations will pay to the State a total of nearly $1,000,000 more than they paid last year.

Railroads are increased from $40,556,793 to $167,985,000. The L. & N. is raised from $12,000,000 to $25,500,000 and the I. C. from $4,500,000 to $21,500,000.

To be Held in Mercer Park By Uniform Rank W. O. W.

FREE ATTRACTIONS VARIED.

Six Gala Days Promised Week Beginning Monday, April 22.

Arrangements are being rapidly perfected for the Spring Festival of the Uniform Rank W. O. W. at Mercer Park, in Hopkinsville, one entire week, beginning Monday, April 22.

By locating the Barkoot aggregation at Mercer Park the committee think that a more compact and ornamental Midway can be laid out. The free attractions also require a large amount of space, and there is no doubt that the best results can be obtained by using the location named.

The Barkoot Company are finishing their engagement at Nashville, where they have been exhibiting for the past two weeks, and press notices received from that city indicate that the attractions they offer are thoroughly in keeping with the high recommendations which have preceded this big aggregation, and the Uniform Rank W. O. W. are to be congratulated on their successful efforts to secure these exhibitions for their Spring Festival.

It is understood that the "Old Country Store" feature will be revived at this carnival, and placed in charge of the Athletic Association of the High School. With the assistance and co-operation of this live bunch of young people, there is no doubt of its success. A "Tag Day" is also under consideration.

Metcalfe, John C. Duffy, A. W. Wood and C. O. Wright. These articles provide that there shall be no capital stock and that the indebtedness is never to exceed $1000. The affairs of the corporation are to be looked after by a board of twelve directors, a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer. All of these places had been filled except that of secretary and R. L. Castleberry has been elected secretary. The officers will hold office until the first Monday night in July, when the regular election will be held, and after that on the first Monday night in July in each year.

The objects and purposes of the corporation are set forth in the articles as follows:

"The purpose of this association or corporation is not for the profit of its members, but the mercantile, manufacturing and general interests of Hopkinsville and Christian county; to collect, preserve and disseminate information related to the commercial, financial and industrial affairs that may be of general interest and value; to create and encourage confidence and good faith on the part of our citizens in the opportunities the city of Hopkinsville affords for profitable investment and individual and corporate industry; to present to the outside world the resources, advantages and opportunities of our own town and county; to encourage and induce outside capital to invest in Hopkinsville, and good citizens to locate therein; to create better business conditions; to promote public spirit among our citizens for the promotion of better streets and highways, parks, public health, convenience and comfort of the citizens of Hopkinsville and Christian county."

FIREPROOF.

Many persons remember the old reservoir which stood on Beacon hill, a massive stone structure occupying the land on which the state house extension was built. Several years ago the chief of the Paris fire department and a colonel in the French army visited Boston to make a study of fire risks, says the Traveler. Just before leaving Boston he called on the late Fire Chief William A. Greene and asked him if there were any fire-proof structures in Boston. "Only one," quickly replied Mr. Greene, "the reservoir on Beacon hill, and I'm not quite sure of that."

THE MYSTERY SOLVED.

Marjory (interrupting conversation)—I say, Mr. Driveller, I know where babies come from now!

The Curate (much embarrassed).—Indeed?

Marjory—Yes, from the dairy, 'cos they've got a notice on their window, "Families Supplied Daily."

—London Sketch.

POINT OF VIEW.

"I can't understand why a man of his culture and intelligence should have married such a silly creature," she said.

"What I can't understand," he replied, "is why such a pretty girl should have consented to become the wife of such a solemn prig as he."

QUARREL DISCREET.

"Why do you employ such elaborate circumlocution when you tell a man that you doubt his veracity?"

"I find it better to use the longest words possible. If I can't compel a man to consult the dictionary to ascertain just what I mean both our tempers get a chance to cool."

TAKING PICTURES OF SKY

Great International Task That is Most Important of Kind Ever Undertaken.

A photographic map of the sky has been occupying the attention of the astronomers of the world for many years and is still far from complete. The information so far derived is tabulated and published in books, each volume containing little but a mass of figures.

The work is invaluable from a scientific point of view. This great international task is probably the most important of its kind ever undertaken.

The entire sky is to be photographed twice—that is, with a short and long exposure. Each of the eighteen observatories participating will take about 1,200 photographs. The work has gone on continuously since 1892. The total number of separate stars in the sky, the positions and magnitudes of which by each observatory will be determined, is about two hundred thousand. Eighteen times that—to estimate the work of the other universities as well—brings the approximate total to nearly four million.

BUYING EVERYTHING

Bronson—Wealth won't buy everything.

Woodson—That's what I tell mother and the girls. But it looks as if they were going to keep on trying as long as the checkbook holds out.

HOMELESS DOGS IN PARIS.

Paris, like Constantinople before the revolution of the Young Turks, numbers its stray dogs by the thousands. The statistician of the Excelsior estimates that 20,000 are annually found in the French capital and half of them taken to the city's pound. Of this 10,000 about 7,000 are executed, 1,500 returned to their owners and 1,500 turned over to the hospitals for vivisection experiments. But there remain 10,000 who escape government regulation and find new masters or succeed in leading a vagabond life. Too speedy surrender of dogs to the vivisectionists has just called forth from M. Lepine, the police dictator of Paris, an order that all dogs which fall into the hands of the authorities shall have four days of grace.

CHINESE IN CUBA.

There are close to 12,000 Chinese in Cuba and the census of 1907 recorded the fact that 40 Chinese women were inhabitants of Cuba. Before Cuba became a republic it cost every Chinaman who entered $2 to get his entrance ticket. Now Cuba bids him welcome with little expense.

He has to furnish a photograph of himself and stand inspection much as a man entering a penal institution. The system employed by Chief Menocal is similar to the one used at all United States ports.

The Chinese legation is always represented at the immigration office when Chinese come and go, so that a double check is placed on the travelers from the far east.

TENNYSON'S CLAY PIPE.

Tennyson was an unwavering devotee of the clay pipe. "I take my pipe," he wrote to a friend in 1842, "and the muse descends in the fume, not like your modern ladies, who shriek at a pipe as if they saw a 'splackmuck'—'splackmuck' being the word which the dwellers in Brobdingnag applied to a man."

When invited on a visit to Mr. Gladstone in 1876 Tennyson wrote: "As you are good enough to say that you will manage anything rather than lose my visit, will you manage that I can have my pipe in my own room whenever I like?"—London Daily News.

MEN'S SUITS $20

Suits of this Character Sell Regularly at $25.00 and $30.00

We are in a position to furnish at the above price the best suits that can be produced. Every imaginable color, all the good fabrics and a perfect fit in every instance. Browns, Tans and Blues are much in evidence. High-grade novelties are also included. The very suit that you have had in mind is here.

MEN'S SUITS $5, $10, $15

Garments of equal quality are usually sold at $18 and $20

We know that thousands of men in Christian and surrounding country want to pay about $15.00 for a suit, and these men demand good style and good material. There is no reason why the man who wants to invest only $15.00 should not secure a good suit, and he can, provided he comes here. It would be impossible for us to give you a description of all the splendid garments we have at $15.00. We invite you to come and try on one of these suits and see for yourself what grand values they are.

MEN'S SUITS $25.00

Men who usually pay $35 and $40 for Suits

Should see these garments before investing. We know that they are the best garments manufactured at the price. We know that the fabrics are excellent, that the colors are good, and that the tailoring is unsurpassed; but before we can convince you that these facts are positively true, we must ask you to see the suits yourself. You alone can be the judge, therefore we believe it will be to our mutual interest if you will come in and let us show you.

NEW SPRING OXFORDS

We can show you more new styles in Florsheim, Nettleton, Barry, new Hannan & Son and W. L. Douglas Shoes and Oxford than all other houses in Hopkinsville combined. This is a broad statement, but we can prove it. Come and see. New Stetson Hats. Our furnishing goods department was never more complete. See our B. V. D. underwear; our boys' clothing; Duchess never-rip pants. We want your business. Come to see us.

For Women Who Care

Of course you use an antiseptic in your family and in the care of your own person, and you want the best.

Instead of what you have been using such as liquid or tablet antiseptics or peroxide, won't you please try Paxtine, a concentrated antiseptic powder to be dissolved in water as needed.

Paxtine is more economical, more cleansing, more germicidal and more healing than anything you ever used.

Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC

In the toilet—to cleanse and whiten the teeth, remove tartar and prevent decay. To disinfect the mouth, destroy disease germs, and purify the breath. To keep artificial teeth and bridgework clean and odorless. To remove nicotine from the teeth and purify the breath after smoking. To eradicate perspiration odors by sponge bathing.

As a medicinal agent for local treatment of feminine ills where pelvic catarrh, inflammation and ulceration exist, nothing equals hot douches of Paxtine. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. has been regularly advising their patients to use it because of its extraordinary cleansing, healing and germicidal power. For this purpose alone Paxtine is worth its weight in gold. Also for nasal catarrh, sore throat, inflamed eyes, cuts and wounds. All druggists, 25 and 50 cents a box. Write for a free leaflet to J. C. HOOE, 311 N. Main St., Hopkinsville, Tenn.

SAW HIS DUTY POINTED OUT

Advertisement of John Ware Gave Valuable Idea to the Travelling Salesman.

"While working through Pennsylvania recently I saw an advertisement that ought to bring relief to a few distressed souls," said the traveling salesman. "It headed the personal column and said:

"Be it hereby known to all my correspondents that I have this day destroyed all letters they would wish to be destroyed."

JOHN WARE.
"That notice was so extraordinary that I stopped over for a late train and called on John Ware. He was a genial old man and willing to talk. He said he was a person to whom people voluntarily confided secrets; that many persons in haste of confidence had written letters to him which they no doubt afterward regretted having written.

"Sometimes they said, 'Destroy this,' sometimes they didn't. Anyhow, John Ware had kept most of those incriminating letters. But now that he was getting old he had seen what harm might result from those letters falling into strange and unscrupulous hands, and he had burned them and had taken that novel way of notifying his correspondents that they were safe.

"That talk with John Ware set me thinking. The first thing I did when I got back to New York was to burn a batch of letters."

BEAUTY NO LONGER A MARVEL

Time Has Gone By When World Stopped to Wonder at Loveliness of Women.

Within the last week two well-known, beautiful, rich society girls, both young, both popular, with all doors to which society has the key flung open before them, have elected to go into an East End hospital and scrub floors for pauper invalids. Perhaps they will not stick to it; the important thing is that they want to try it.

The fact is that we are no longer sufficiently satisfied with beauty to think a woman has justified herself by being good to look at. Thirty or forty years ago people came from every part of the world to see Georgiana Lady Dudley, Mrs. Langtry and Mrs. Cornwallis-West walk in the park. At an earlier date the beautiful Ginnings caused riots, so great was the anxiety to see them. Anne of Austria drew people from the most inaccessible corners of what was then a very inaccessible world, who made their way with year-long journeys to Paris, caught a glimpse of her entering her carriage and went home again saying they had seen "loveliness itself. Today we would not cross the road to see a pretty woman, possibly because there are so many of them. Indeed, beautiful women of today are more admired by women than by men. But in any case beauty as a profession is dead.—London Truth.

Sneezing as an Omen.

The only attention we pay to a sneeze at the present day is to endeavor to get rid of the chill which causes it; but a sneeze in the days of old Greece was a matter of great concern and import.

There was then a god of sneezing, and great undertakings would even be abandoned if a man sneezed at an inappropriate moment, the act being looked upon as the oracle of the god.

A sneeze between midnight and noon was looked upon as a fortunate sign, but between noon and midnight it betokened great misfortune. To sneeze to your right was lucky; to the left unlucky. Two or four sneezes were lucky, one or three very unlucky and any undertaking in hand should if possible be abandoned; more than four sneezes did not count.

There is a saying in many parts of England today: "Once a wish, twice a kiss, three times a letter, four times something better." If people sneezed together it was a good sign, particularly if they happened to be discussing business.

Amusing Artistic Conceptions.

Many a child, as well as some older persons, has puzzled over that "beam" in the eye of which the New Testament speaks. It is not always understood that this means a beam of light. But it was left to Solomon Bernard, in his woodcuts illustrating the Bible, published at Lyons, in 1553, to picture this beam as one of wood, rectangular in section, and several feet in length. Then there is the case of an English painter who depicted an elaborate rainbow. Unfortunately, he painted it wrong side out. But we forget amazement at such stupidity in admiration for the artist's magnificent audacity when we learn that he charged twenty pounds for repainting the rainbow colored in accordance with nature's arrangement.

Trouble Ahead.

"Do you know that the average man drinks enough beer in the course of his life to float a battleship?"

"No. Does he?"

"Statisticians have found that he does."

"I'm sorry."

"Ah, it is good to hear you say that. I hope you will, now that you realize how great this waste is, give up the habit."

"No, I ain't got any idea of doing that, but I don't see how we're going to be able to keep on drinkin' enough to float battleships if they make their plumed old Broadnoughts much bigger."

MR. COMPTON IN GREAT LUCK

Story That Conveys Moral to Man Called Upon to Give Advice to His Wife.

Mrs. Compton had laid out four dresses on the guestroom bed, and before breakfast she led her husband in to look at them. "Now you know how much I rely on your taste, Henry," she said. "I want you to decide which one of these I shall wear to Mrs. Darnley's luncheon today. Please say exactly what you think."

Mr. Compton hesitated, and then plunged.

"Now that blue," he began, "isn't it—"

"Yes, dear, it is," said Mrs. Compton, and she tossed the blue gown on a chair. "It's too dark altogether."

"Then there's the black," and her husband frowned thoughtfully. "Of course—"

"Yes, of course,"—and Mrs. Compton tossed the black gown after the blue one—"It's handsome enough and light enough, with that gold neck, but it's beginning to show wear."

Mr. Compton breathed heavily. The real test was at hand. A fawn-colored gown and a gray one were left.

"Well, I don't pretend to be a judge of these things," he said, playing for time. "I only know what I like. That gray dress seems to me just a little—er—more so."

"There! I knew I could depend on you!" And Mrs. Compton joyfully flung aside the gray gown. "It is more severe, and the style's a bit trying. I shall wear the fawn-colored one, and be so glad to know you chose it for me."

"Whew!" said Mr. Compton, as he fled downstairs. "Suppose I'd been a little quicker and got out that 'suitable.' It's a lesson to a man to be deliberate when he's giving advice to his wife."—Youth's Companion.

FRANTIC SEARCH FOR WOOD

Superstitious Customer in Modern Barber Shop Had Hard Time to Find the Object Desired.

"Well, how's the neuralgia?" queried the barber, sympathetically, as he poised the razor over Thompson's lathered face in a professional emporium. "Haven't had any since last"—and then the barber was dumfounded to see his customer rap hard on the arm of the chair. "He" was further astonished when Thompson sat up, jumped to the floor and ran to the marble wash bowl, where another customer was in process of being shampooed.

Thompson reached under the stool on which the customer was sitting, and rapped it. Then, with a look of dismay he turned wildly and made a sprint to the cigar counter at the far end of the room. There he rapped his knuckles on the wooden frame, while barbers and customers, in various stages of barbering and hair cutting, stopped and stared.

"It's all right," he grinned from behind his coat of lather. "Had to touch wood, you know, after making that statement about not having had neuralgia. I sure don't want it again."

"You surely don't have much wood in these places," he observed as the barber somewhat gingerly began the shaving operation anew. "This chair is made of enamel, glass, nickel and leather, that stool set is made of some kind of leatherette composition, and I do believe the only thing in your shop made of wood is that cigar counter frame."

Then Thompson's barber and the other barbers went on shaving.

Superstition Royalty Respects.

Canterbury Cathedral, like most Gothic cathedrals, is decorated with innumerable niches for statues. At Canterbury a series of these niches is occupied with statues of kings and queens of England, and there are only four niches left unoccupied.

An old tradition has it that when all the niches are filled the throne of England will come to an end. Queen Victoria was approached with a view to a statue of herself being placed in one of the four remaining niches, but her late majesty was aware of the old tradition, and refused.

One wonders whether in the future there will be four monarchs of England sufficiently indifferent to superstition to defy the tradition and allow their effigies to fill the unoccupied spaces.—Stray Stories.

Oranges Once a Prohibited Fruit.

Oranges were for some years a prohibited fruit in Holland. When the Batavian republic was established the badge and color of the stadholder's family became so hateful to the popular party that, not satisfied with expelling their prince, they passed a law forbidding the sale of oranges and carrots, and ordering all persons who grew lilies or marigolds in their gardens to pluck up the plants and destroy them. This prohibition remained in force until 1806, when Napoleon made his brother Louis king of Holland.

Sweet Little Harry.

"Ma," said little Harry, "I'll tell you what you ought to do."

"What dear?" his mother asked.

"You ought to go over to live in some country where the people are Mohammedans."

"What on earth ever put such a thought as that into your dear head, darling?"

"Cause over there they think all fat women are beautiful."

"Harry! If you dare to open your mouth again this evening you will be put in bed with nothing to eat."

WEIGHED BOOK WITH CARE

Review of Life of Napoleon Wins Young College Graduate Raise in Salary.

In the Dana days on the New York Sun a young Cornell graduate was put at work reviewing books. One of the first books handed him was a massive "Life of Napoleon," by a college professor.

The Cornell man had specialized on Napoleon at his university, and thought rather poorly of this new biography of Napoleon—who was a professor in another university, by the way. He glanced casually over the illustrations and wrote his review as follows:

"Life of Napoleon," by Professor So-and-So. This work weighs nine pounds.

Mr. Dana read the review and sent for the young man.

"Did you write this review?" he growled.

"Yes, sir."

"Did you read the book?" growled Mr. Dana again, fiercer than before.

"No, sir; I weighed it."

"That'll do!" growled Mr. Dana again.

Then he sent word down to the cashier to raise the reviewer's salary.—Saturday Evening Post.

HAGGARD'S FIRST SUCCESS.

The incident which inspired Sir Henry Rider Haggard's first successful venture in authorship is interesting. He and one of his brothers were riding in the train together from Norfolk to London. He bought "Treasure Island" to read in the train, finished it before reaching Liverpool street and remarked as he dropped it into his bag: "Well, I think I could write a better boys' story than that."

"If you think it's so easy as all that, why don't you try?" asked his skeptical relative. "I will," he rejoined; and he did.

A few weeks afterward he had finished "King Solomon's Mines," of which 100,000 copies were sold during the first five years.

HER FOND HOPE.

Thomas Mott Osborne, a Democratic politician of New York, was talking about political organization. "Good men," he said, "are rare. They come high. There is a tendency to accept as workers all and sundry who volunteer, but this tendency is as foolish as the logic of the smoker's wife. Hereafter," said a smoker, "I prefer to buy my own cigars, darling. You are very good to volunteer to do my cigar buying, but, really, this bag at twelve for a quarter is a little too cheap." "I know twelve for a quarter is cheap," his wife answered, "but I thought there'd be one or two good ones in the twelve."

HAD A RIGHT TO DANCE.

The interesting question as to whether a young man can forbid his fiancée to dance with others was recently raised in a breach of promise case in Berlin. An affianced young woman, fond of dancing, went to balls without her fiancée. The latter informed her that she must give up dancing. She promised, but her love of dancing was stronger than her will. The young man then broke off the engagement. She sued him for breach of promise and won the day, the court finding that, though she had shown a lack of tact in dancing against her fiancée's wish, there was nothing against her conduct.

His Captive Princess

By Clarissa Mackie

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press)

"Evan is a dear," lamented Amy Durland, "but there isn't a spark of romance in him—that is, not the right kind!"

"You mean the kind we have just witnessed?" asked her friend, Hester Blake, they left the theater and walked down the street.

"Yes—" hesitated Amy with a swift upward glance at Hester's rather severe profile. "Evan Gates isn't the sort of man to do anything romantic—oh, you know what I mean, Hester—we have just seen it at the matinee. Fancy Evan rescuing me from captivity in a lonely tower! Evan would call out the fire department to run a ladder up to my window and I would be released by the most prosaic method, while Evan would stand at the foot of the ladder looking at his watch and grumbling because he might miss an important business engagement!"

"Nonsense!" laughed Hester. "You underestimate Evan's chivalry because the opportunity has never been offered him to display it."

Amy tossed her pretty head in utter scorn of Hester's matter-of-fact opinion and as they entered a bus and went their way uptown her mind was busy with little plans whereby she might prove to herself that the man she was engaged to and who really was a most devoted lover, should prove further devotion by some romantic deed of chivalry.

It was not until she was dropping off to sleep that night that the great plan came to her and it immediately banished all sleep from her violet eyes. Amy lived with an uncle.

Several days afterward Evan Gates scanning the pile of morning mail on his desk picked out a small grayish blue envelope and opened it with a tender, expectant smile.

It was from Amy and bore most astonishing tidings:

"Dearest Evan: Come to my rescue at once—Uncle Bert has locked me in the tower at Hilltop because I will not marry Terry Bannister and give you up. There are rats and mice here—and you know how I hate them! I shall drop this letter from the window and trust to some one mailing it for me. Come quick, dearest, before I die of fright and starvation.

"Somebody's Crazy as a Loon."

"Your distracted Amy."

P. S. "Please come yourself and do not have any publicity."

Evan read and reread the hastily written, tear-blotted missive.

"Somebody's crazy as a loon and it may be me!" ejaculated Mr. Gates. He picked up the telephone receiver and called the number of Mr. Frake's town house where he had seen Amy only two days before. As he talked into the transmitter his face changed from perplexity to surprise, disbelief, impatience, anxiety, and back to perplexity again.

"Now, what do you make of that?" he frowned as he leaned back in his chair.

A servant had answered the telephone. She had said that Mr. Frake had sailed for Europe that morning and that Miss Durland had gone away the day before—it was not known just where but on a week-end visit somewhere.

As Amy and her guardian-uncle composed the family, there was nothing for Evan Gates to do but to take the next train for Hillside and unravel the hideous plot and rescue the unfortunate damsel from the tower.

"Somebody's crazy!" repeated Evan as he hurried up to the station for his train.

He decided it was Terry Bannister when that joyous youth collided with him at the Central station and instantly grabbed him by the lapels of his coat.

"The greatest news ever!" bleated Terry grinning widely.

"Well, what is it?" snapped Evan, remembering that this was his rival, and also that he had a train to catch.

"I'm engaged—she's said yes—the dearest girl in the world!" chorled Mr. Bannister, announcing his engagement in his usual spectacular manner.

Evan's blood ran cold. He turned away from the entrance to the train sheds. "Her name?" he asked crisply, he thought he could guess.

"I should think you might guess—Gladys Hallman, of course—Hill, where you go!"

"Congratulations—got to make this train!" shouted Evan over his shoulder as he sped away.

"I wonder what's eating him?" reflected Terry as he went on his glad-some way.

Anxiety and bewilderment were gnawing at Evan's mind as the train ran out into the open country.

Some one tapped his shoulder gently and he turned around to see Hester Blake's plain, pleasant countenance. He instantly found a seat beside her and learned that she was going to the next station beyond Hillside for a short visit.

Because Hester was Amy's dearest friend and because he knew she was loyal and utterly practical, Evan showed her Amy's letter and related his interview with the servant at the Frake house and his meeting with Terry Bannister.

"What does it mean, Hester?" he asked anxiously.

To his surprise Hester leaned back in her seat and laughed until she cried. "The foolish little girl!" she uttered at last.

"Foolish?" queried Evan more puzzled than ever.

Hester nodded and related her suspicions. She told of the talk they had had after the matinee and what Amy had said about Evan's lack of chivalry. "The child must have planned this whole thing since then for Mr. Frake has been expecting to go abroad for some time—in fact he sailed with father and we both know him to be utterly incapable of treating Amy in this manner. What shall you do, Evan?"

"Rescue her in a good old-fashioned way," said Evan grimly but he could not suppress a smile—a tender smile it was—over the romance of Amy Durland. "I don't mind," he said to himself sturdily; "she'll get over it soon enough."

Hester waved him a laughing farewell at Hillside and Evan tramped on the tall tower that was visible for miles around. He saw a speck of white up on the tiny observation platform and as he entered the grounds of the estate it disappeared within.

The big house appeared to be vacant. The tower he knew contained a little room at the top prepared for comfort and the service of refreshments. It was approached by a winding iron stairway within and entrance was by a solid oak door at the bottom.

Evan looked over the situation carefully and changed his plan of rescue. He whistled a familiar note and Amy instantly appeared on the balcony.

"You dear! You have come!" she called down in a tremulous whisper. Amy was enjoying herself.

"Yes, I've come, dear," called up Evan suppressing a smile. "I come at once—I met Terry Bannister and what do you think?"

"What?" asked Amy feebly.

"He's engaged to Gladys Hallman—told me so."

"The—the horrid thing! Why, Gladys has a glass eye." Amy was plainly disconcerted.

"And, Amy, dear, shall I effect your rescue before the eyes of all the country?" He swept an arm suggestively around. "Or will you walk down the stair and unlock the door?"

"You are so—horrid and unromantic!" cried Amy tearfully.

"Dear heart, you've got romance enough for both of us. Ah, come down, dear, I want to kiss my captive princess—can't I rescue you by persuasion?"

Evan looked so handsome and captivating at that moment with the love-light shining in his dark eyes that the captive princess merely waved her hand and came down and unlocked the prison door.

"I suppose this is an up-to-date method of release," sighed Amy as they walked back to the station. "It's awfully unromantic but its better than being up there with the spiders!"

CLIMAXES OF SLOW DISEASE

Really, There is No Such Thing as "Sudden Death," as It is Generally Understood.

There is no such thing as "sudden death" from disease. Those deaths appearing to us as sudden are in reality the very slowest forms of disease, so slow and insidious that they often pass unrecognized, as for instance, Bright's disease, rheumatic states and hardening of the arteries.

The conditions which precipitate the result that comes so often in our civilization like a lightning stroke are brought about by slow degrees, which all at once reach a climax—and we are surprised simply because we were not aware of the conditions.

Financiers, statesmen, politicians, professional workers and merchants—men who live well, but under stern stress and struggle—are most frequently subject to the conditions which lead to such sudden terminations. They are the unfortunate who really require more care, on account of their greater burdens, but do not take time to attend to the all-important measures—exercise, rest, etc.—which mean increased activity of the skin and respiratory functions, more perfect elimination and longevity.

APPEAL

Taken At The Last Moment In Noted Mill Case.

After Master Commissioner Jno. B. Chilton had begun the distribution of the remaining funds of the defunct Acme Mills & Elevator Co. to the bond-holders on the basis of 4 per cent, the law firm of Trimble & Bell stopped proceedings by filing an appeal with supersedeas bond from the judgment of the court, upon the ground that the law fee allowed them was insufficient. They asked for $1250 and Judge Hanbery allowed $250. This has again tied up things temporarily and Mr. Chilton may have to make a pro rata call on the claims already paid if the higher court changes the judgment.

He Weighed 850 Pounds.

The abnormal weight of 850 pounds attained by Abraham Sodekson of Boston caused his death from fatty degeneration of the heart. He was 26 years old. Four weeks ago, when taken ill, Sodekson weighed 434 pounds. During his sickness it is estimated that he gained weight at the rate of 20 pounds a day.

Family of Old Persons.

Editor Hopkinsville Kentuckian:

In a recent issue of your valuable paper I noticed an item with the above heading, and under which the Hester family of six claimed a record average age of 74 years. Now if it is not an intrusion on your time and space I will ask that you publish this.

So far as I am informed, our family is one of the most remarkable longevity of modern times. We are descendants of French Huguenot Protestants of the 16th and 17th centuries, emigrating to, and settling in the States of Va. and N. C. and so far as I know, they and their descendants have been amongst the strongest adherents to the Holy Scriptures of this country, and chiefly have adhered to immersion as baptism, local church government, etc. So being a moral and christian people I think has had much to do in attaining the long lives as follows: Of my immediate family now living, five in number, (brothers and sisters) whose combined ages average 74½ years, Mrs. M. K. Miller, of Richardsville, Ky., age 82 years, Mrs. R. A. Jones, of Lincoln, Mo., age 77 years, Mrs. S. F. Jones, of Los Angeles, Calif., 69 years; R. B. Chastain, of Russellville, Ky., 71 years; S. E. Chastain, of this city, 74 years, total 373 years, also a half brother, F. J. Chastain, of this city, is 64 years of age. Our maternal uncle Russell Miller, of Olmstead, Ky., died at the age of 90 years. Fraternal uncles and aunts, Edmund Ayres, 90 years, Mrs. Nancy Fuqua, died aged 97 years, Jacob Chastain, Warsaw, Mo., died in 91st year, and his elder son, Joe Chastain, of Mo., was nearing the century milestone when I last heard of him. Also Paul Chastain, of Vinita, Okla., (brother of the late Joe S. Chastain, of this city) is in his 82 year, and whose father, Dr. John Chastain, of Russellville, Ky., lived to the age of 85 or 87 as I now remember. As a rule in our family connection we were taught and required obedience especially to our parents and strict respect to truth and honesty, which forcibly reminds me of the first command of God with a promise, See Ephesians 6, 2-3. Yours truly,
